

★ DA BOMBO

Duncan Riffle works on his aerodynamics.

ing was able to secure both men's and women's downhill victory: Needles took the win by close to one second over Atkinson and Moseley repeated her qualifying run brilliance to take the win for the women by five seconds.

Commenting on his final run after the race, Andrew stated, "I haven't had a win in awhile, so it feels real good to get one overseas." Neethling was quick to credit the racetrack for a lot of his enjoyment of the weekend. "The track is fun and the people here are real nice, it's been a real good weekend," Neethling continued. And Moseley was of the same opinion, "After Maribor [World Cup] greased the trail for Sunday morning's qualifying runs. The weather forced a change of race strategy for many.

"Yeah, the track changed a little bit over night," said Bryn Atkinson (TFR) after qualifying, "I had to change a few little things, but I put together a good run." Atkinson would qualify a second up on Andrew Neethling (Trek) for the men's downhill, while Needles' Trek teammate, Tracy Moseley, was able to post up seven seconds on KHS's Melissa Buhl.

With a steady breeze and sunny skies all day, things dried out by race time and Trek World Rac-

One guy that wants more East versus West mountain bike racing: Sean "Grii" McClendon.

East X West